IV. In (100 – 150 words), change the following oppressive, sad and gloomy setting into a hopeful and happy one using sensory details of a character who was suddenly told that his father will live despite his severe illness.

"His father had been very sick for months. The doctors had already told the family that there was no hope of recovery, but he still wished for more time with him. As he walked, his phone rang. When he heard the words, "Your father is gone," he stopped moving. His hands began to shake, and his heart felt heavy. The sounds of the traffic seemed louder than ever, and the smell of smoke made him feel sick. The hot air pressed against his face, and the dusty wind stung his eyes. Even though he had expected this moment, the pain was still sharp. The dark street around him matched the sadness inside him, and every slow step felt heavier than the one before". (4 Marks)

V. In (150 – 200 words), invent a character of a scientist, use the following keywords, and rest on all the categories of the character creation checklist:

Medicine, Laboratory, Lab Coat, Messy Hair, Glasses, Microscope, Tablet, Intelligent, Problem Solving, Scientific Writing, Teach Future Scientists, Books and Encyclopedias, Experiments. (5 Marks)
