I. Write Short Notes (30-50 words) on the Following: (15 Marks)

a- Setting description in a play script (3 Marks)
b- The blueprint for a film (4 Marks)
c- The attributes for a script (4 Marks)
d- Two ways screenwriters use synopses (4 Marks)

II. In your answer booklet, write (200-250) words using memory to revive a scene where you were recognized as the best student, and you fell down on your way to taking the award and felt embarrassed. Use the first-person omniscient point of view and integrate some dialogue with your colleagues, showing rather than telling the whole situation. You can invent details to enhance the feeling of embarrassment. Cast the whole memory in the past tense and integrate sensory details. (10 Marks)

III. Write an introductory part of a script that includes the following: (15 Marks)

- The title page including the title of the play, a description line, and the name of the playwright
- The character roster including six characters and their short descriptors
- The first scene of the first act including setting, followed by stage directions and then a one-page dialogue between characters reflecting a rising action and foreshadowing a conflict. (200 -250 Words)

Please note to write in the present tense, using active verbs and descriptive nouns to give the story immediacy and help captivate your reader.

VI. Re-write the following extract from Virginia Woolf's "A Haunted House" after editing it, concentrating especially on punctuation and grammar. Underline the changes in your booklet: (10 Marks) whatever hour you woke there was a door shutting. From room to room they went, hand in hand lifting here opening there, making sure—a ghostly couple. Here we left it she said. And he added Oh, but here too!" It's upstairs she murmured "And in the garden" he whispered. "Quietly," they said, "or we shall wake them." But it wasn't that you woke us. Oh, no. they're looking for it; they're drawing the curtain one might say, and so read on a page or two. Now they've found it one would be certain stopping the pencil on the margin and then, tired of reading, one might rise and see for oneself, the house all empty, the doors standing open, only the wood pigeons bubbling with content and the hum of the threshing machine sounding from the farm What did I come in here for What did I want to find My hands were empty "Perhaps it's upstairs then?" The apples were in the loft. And so down again, the garden still as ever, only the book had slipped into the grass. but they had found it in the drawing room. not that one could ever see them the windowpanes reflected apples, reflected roses; all the leaves were green in the glass. if they moved in the drawing room, the apple only turned its yellow side. Yet, the moment after, if the door was opened, spread about the floor, hung upon the walls, pendant from the ceiling—what my hands were empty. The shadow of a thrush crossed the carpet; from the deepest wells of silence the wood pigeon drew its bubble of sound. "Safe, safe, safe" the pulse of the house beat softly
