PART A: [15 points]

Read the following passage and respond to the prompts that follow it:

Cat abandonment in Kuwait is a growing concern that requires immediate action. Reports indicate that approximately 18,250 cats are abandoned each year in the country, which translates to nearly 50 cats abandoned daily. Many people purchase expensive cats in the fall, but they often abandon them each spring as they leave for vacations, demonstrating a lack of commitment to responsible pet ownership.

Animal activists witness many stories of the horrors these cats endure, such as the case of Tigger, whose family decided to take a vacation out of Kuwait. They dumped him at the Science Center, a common location for abandoning cats. Tigger faced hunger, disease, and loneliness as he searched for food and companionship in the streets. Tragically, he ultimately died.

In areas like the Science Center, abandoned pets gather and form colonies, creating a breeding ground for diseases as they transmit viruses to one another. Left to fend for themselves, these cats face harsh conditions, particularly during the intense summer heat, which can reach up to 55°C. Local activists, like Sara Al-Mansoori, have worked tirelessly to raise awareness about this tragic situation, but their efforts remain underfunded and limited in scope. Additionally, adoption opportunities for these cats are scarce, and even the fortunate ones find themselves at risk of abandonment once adopted. Therefore, to effectively address cat abandonment in Kuwait, it is crucial to improve public awareness of responsible pet ownership, increase funding for rescue efforts, and expand adoption resources.

- A study by Steel (2007), published in the Psychological Bulletin, reveals that in a survey presented in The Journal of Educational Psychology (2016), students who regularly received deadline extensions were more likely to exhibit blame-shifting behaviors and decreased responsibility.

- Research in Higher Education Research & Development (2018) indicates that students who adhere to stricter schedules develop superior time optimization skills, contributing to better academic and professional performance.

- A study by Steel (2007), published in the Psychological Bulletin, reveals that postponing work is often linked to short-term benefits like reduced anxiety, which can be reinforced by lenient deadlines. Allowing late work without consequence builds a habit where students continuously delay tasks for immediate relief, normalizing the phenomenon.

Part C: [15 points]

a. Read the following passage. Identify the seven connecting words and phrases and explain the function of each. [2 points each]

AI technology is advancing rapidly; however, it is essential to address ethical considerations to ensure it serves humanity positively. Many industries, such as healthcare and finance, are beginning to integrate AI into their processes. For example, AI can analyze large datasets quickly, providing insights that could improve decision-making. Also, by automating repetitive tasks, AI allows humans to focus on more creative and strategic activities. In other words, AI acts as a powerful tool to enhance human capabilities and efficiency. When implementing AI systems, companies must be cautious about data privacy and security, thus protecting user information and maintaining trust.
