QUESTION ONE (25 MARKS)

- You should attempt to answer ALL questions in this section.

Case Study:

McDonald's operates as a global brand but adapts its menu to local tastes and cultures. For example, in India, McDonald's does not serve beef products and instead offers items like the "McAloo Tikki Burger," while in Japan it has introduced the "Teriyaki Burger." This approach allows the company to maintain its global identity while appealing to local preferences.

Q1 a. (15 Marks).

Discuss the concept of a global brand and provide one example of a well-known global brand. Then, explain the advantages of global branding for businesses operating in international markets.
